From the Editor

Monday, October 26th, 2026

Beautiful fall weather with cool nights and warm, sunshiny days. The weather isn't an excuse to not get the yard work done this fall. We had a few hard frosts, which prompted me to get the sweet potatoes out of the ground. Still need to winterize the camper before a hard freeze.

Several changes are coming up for our Sawmill Exchange publication. Effective immediately, we are going back to a free publication model! We do not want the cost to be the reason why you aren't getting the Bid Book. Watch for a more informative announcement in the next few issues.

We are also going to print once a month (starting January 2027) instead of two issues per month to try to save on production and mailing costs. This will probably mean some earlier deadlines for late-month consignment auctions, but we will do our best to accommodate you on that.

We will also be mailing more copies each month to try to get more eyeballs on our auction equipment as well as display advertisers' products. We hope to get to 10,000–12,000 mailings per month and more as we build our mailing list. Know of anyone who would be interested in getting the book? Send us their address, and we'll add them to the list.

I am cutting back on office hours as we are in a slow period as far as auctions go. So leave a message if I don't pick up the phone, and I'll return your call if necessary.

Happy fall, y'all!

Have a great week!

Until next time,

Wayne Nisley, Editor

YOU 'DA DAD

Familyman

Lock 'Dem Doors

Hey Dad,

Hope you're enjoying these last days of warm weather with your family. Man, it went fast. The leaves are changing, and it won't be long before the trees are bare. This would be the perfect weekend for a campfire with s'mores, a game of kickball, or some other outside family activity. But that's not why I'm writing today.

I've made a dad-discovery.

It happened about a week ago... at the end of the day. We had just finished a family video, and I had closed the viewing time with my traditional, "Ok, time for bed." Everyone scattered, leaving me the duty of turning off the lights.

I was heading upstairs with my daughter Katherine behind me when she asked her nightly question, "Dad, did you lock the doors?"

I don't know why she asks that every single night. I don't think she's seen any movie involving break-ins, but somehow she feels insecure at bedtime and is afraid I'll forget.

"Katherine, you can lock the door," I said. "You're only 2 feet away from it."

"Yes, but I want YOU to lock it." BOOM!!! Discovery made.

My daughter was perfectly capable...but wanted me to do it. I guess it made her feel cared for...like I was doing what dads are supposed to do...lock the doors and protect their families.

I've thought about that little discovery ever since because it's bigger than just locking doors at night. It's about ME, as the dad, doing my duty to protect my family. It's about ME making sure the van runs properly, turning off movies that we shouldn't watch, cutting off unhealthy relationships, telling daughters, "No, you can't wear that...go up and put some clothes on." It's about dads LOCKING THE DOORS.

So, Dad, maybe you've let some things slide or delegated some of YOUR responsibilities. It's time to take a good, hard look at the family landscape and see if you need to be LOCKIN' SOME DOORS!!!

You 'da door locker!
Todd

You 'da dad!

Free Weekly Email for Dads

Do you ever wish a guy would come to your house, slug you in the arm, and tell you to straighten up, be a good dad, and be loving to your wife? Well, now your wildest dreams have come true, because I'll come to your home or office each week and do just that. Now, don't be expecting a theological treatise on husbanding, because the Familyman Weekly isn't that. Think of it more as one dad encouraging another over the backyard fence.

VORTEX™ V6 CHIPPER

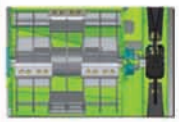

WIDEST INFEED 6" × 17"

With the largest infeed opening available in the 6-inch brush chipper class, the Vortex series allows operators to feed larger limbs and brush with fewer cuts. This expanded capacity minimizes material preparation, increases throughput, and improves overall jobsite efficiency.

HIGH-VELOCITY THROWING DISC

A drum chipper with the throwing power of a disc. The throwing disc blows chips directly from the chamber in a tight, consistent stream into a pile or chip truck.

ANTI-CLOG VORTEX CHAMBERS

The revolutionary open design eliminates clogging by using a skinless drum and an angled discharge chamber that directs chips straight to the thrower wheel. With a pocketless drum, the system delivers consistent flow and performance - unlike traditional drum chippers.

Maximum Feed Capacity:	6"	Number of Knives:	4 Knives
Engine Horsepower:	35 HP	Adjustable Discharge Chute:	Manual Swivel Discharge, Adjustable Height
Fuel Capacity:	10 Gallons

ENVIROMAX

ALL-TERRAIN LOG FORWARDER

EnviroMax is the sawmill and loggers answer to providing consistent timber supplies in any ground condition, 365 days a year. Compared to conventional wheeled machines that leave deep ruts in soft ground and weather related lost production time.

EnviroMax is the answer to delivering clean and sorted logs to the road or portable sawmill, with minimal damage to the property.

The key to the EnviroMax and it's extremely low ground pressure, is the rubber track system.

EnviroMax ground pressure is 3 psi empty and 6 psi fully loaded.

4 models are available with carrying capacity of 4 to 10 tons. Options like blades, winch, air conditioning, heat, closed or open cab are also available.

The Business Edge

Joy In Everything

When things go wrong on the job, is it possible to keep your joy?

The phrase "Choose Joy" is a common one that might even sound cliché. Does "joy" matter in the daily life of a Christian business, whether in the shop, or in the sawmill, or out on the construction job?

A Daily Choice
Joy is a choice, a daily decision to reflect Christ in our attitudes, words, and actions. When we choose joy, we create families and workplaces filled with encouragement, relationships marked by grace, and service that reflects the love of Jesus.

Nehemiah 8:10 reminds us, "The joy of the Lord is your strength." Galatians 5:22 reads, "But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith."

Where Fear Ends, Joy Begins
For business leaders, fear is often the thief of our joy. Imagine a playground seesaw. On one end sits fear, and on the other sits joy. When fear rises, joy falls. When joy rises, fear is pushed down. Fear and joy cannot rule the heart at the same time.

Will this business decision succeed? Will I meet expectations? Will I fail? Every time fear is given the upper hand, joy is pressed down.

Trusting God with the Outcome
To choose joy is not to deny reality or ignore challenges. It is to place our full trust in the sovereignty and goodness of God. It is to say, "The God I serve is greater than any outcome I face."

Philippians 4:4 gives a direct command. When our joy is tied to circumstances, it rises and falls like the seesaw. When it is rooted in Christ, it remains steady.

Joy That Spreads
Scripture tells us joy is not just a feeling. It is a choice we make each day. Joy is more than happiness based on circumstances.

This kind of joy is contagious. It influences our teams, our families, and our communities. May joy take root in each of our hearts. Not as a slogan, but as a daily practice.

"Rejoice in the Lord always: and again I say, Rejoice." Philippians 4:4

LOGGING Life

Big Timber

By Ethan Royer

People, regardless of whether they are loggers or normal people, enjoy talking about big trees. Big, of course, is a relative term. Landowners often call their trees huge when describing them to a prospective timber buyer. True giants are rare in northern Indiana, but we do encounter them occasionally. While it is always fun and literally earth-shaking to fell gigantic trees, part of the fun is in photographing, measuring, and telling about it.

Certain species come to mind when thinking of giant trees: cottonwood, tulip poplar, sycamore, and various types of oak are most likely to achieve mammoth size. Others, black cherry, locust, elm, and aspen, usually blow over, rot, or die before they can. Even among the potential giants, few survive to gianthood. The secret sauce of tree longevity is hard to know, but the recipe includes fertile soil, adequate water, and a good root system. Add to that sufficient sunlight, evading lightning, escaping hungry deer, and avoiding loggers with chainsaws and boys with hatchets, and a tree may live long enough to grow huge.

The species most associated with exceptionally big trees may be the oak, particularly the burr oak. Burr oak is in the white oak family and can get huge while remaining sound. It is rot-resistant and does well at compartmentalizing injuries.

The Bible has many references to oak trees, such as when Absalom got hung in the tree by his hair in a "thick oak". Oaks are historically significant; many Bible references to oaks describe burials, memorials, or other important events as happening "under an oak." The Indians had Council Oaks where important meetings took place. One of these historic Council Oak trees was in nearby South Bend until struck by lightning in 1992. It is said that French explorer La Salle held a council with Indian leaders here in 1681 that led to the Miami treaties.

We'd logged for my neighbor several times, and he had a giant burr oak in his woods that he would not let us cut; he said it was a landmark. But a few years ago, we logged his woods again and he said, "Let's cut that tree, I don't know why we didn't cut it before." It was starting to have some rot issues in the top, and some of the spreading limbs were breaking off. It turned out to be 100% solid at the butt and measured about 72" in diameter. It was still 54" at 18'.

I wish we would've scaled it, but the Doyle scale stick stops at 48", and I didn't know of charts available that go beyond that. I seldom count growth rings on the trees we cut, but I did count them on this one. Some of the rings were so close together that it was hard to count accurately, but it came to around 245 years old.

It is intriguing to think that it would've been a seedling in 1776 when the Declaration of Independence was signed. I would assume there were still Native Americans roaming these parts back in 1776. Was it one of the storied Council Oaks?

Probably not because it would not have been big enough back then, but it is interesting to imagine that this tree could've been wiped out by a warrior with a tomahawk! We cut this tree with a 36" bar but later borrowed a saw with a 48" bar to cut a souvenir slab off the stump. The slab is drying now, but maybe someday I'll make a timeline out of it, perhaps marking the dates of ancestors or important dates in American history.

A farmer once hired me to cut a hollow sycamore tree with an over 4' diameter to make way for an irrigation pivot. Having only a 4" rind of solid wood around the edge, it had no log value, so he laid it aside, hoping to find some use for it. A while later, I saw a wanted ad for a large hollow log to use as a smokehouse for a Native American reenactment event. Although it was punky by this time, they did come get a section of it; apparently huge hollow logs are hard to source.

I know of a large (5'+) white oak that will probably not be harvested until it rots or falls over. The landowner and his family have even given it a name—Papa Bear. Two other big trees close to it are named Momma Bear and Baby Bear. Sometimes, sentimental value trumps cash value.

While fun to cut and talk about, oversized trees are a nuisance in most other ways. Logging equipment is designed for normal sized timber, and it can be difficult to skid and load monster trees. Most mills in this area do not accept logs greater than 48" in diameter. There are some niche options like the tabletop slab market, but they aren't interested in all species. It seems logical that rarity would create value, but limited outlets reduce competition. We've encountered a situation where only one person was interested in the log we had, allowing them to name their price.

Sometimes trees that are very large in diameter are not very nice in other ways.. The most healthy and vigorous trees typically have access to plenty of light, have many limbs, and resemble a head of broccoli—about as wide as they are tall. In other words, a fencerow or yard tree. It takes much of the joy out of cutting a huge tree when it only falls to about a 45° angle and stops because of all the huge limbs holding it up. Big trees growing inside woods are usually much easier to fell and top; they generally have a large crown too, but it is not just 20-30' above ground.

Should a landowner let his trees go unharvested until they are huge? No. It is usually counterproductive to let one huge tree hog the sunlight that could be growing several smaller trees. Also, while trees that are very large and very tall are fun to cut, they are quite destructive to the surrounding trees when they fall. Sometimes, even the top logs are reduced to splinters from the force of the impact. On the plus side, due to their sheer weight, they never hang up in other trees.

The post-harvest appearance of a tract full of oversized timber is usually quite ugly for several reasons:

(1) The trees are big and cause a lot of collateral damage.
(2) Many trees need to be harvested to remove all the mature and overmature trees.
(3) Woods dominated by very large trees typically have very little understory growth, so when the overstory is removed, not much is left of the woodlot.

It is difficult to mark timber in a stand that has gone unharvested for too long. If I mark everything that should be cut, the results are ugly, and I risk upsetting the landowner. But leaving some of the mature trees is not good either because they may not last until the next harvest. Even if they do last, they will be oversized, overripe, and may smash the new growth in the openings created by the initial harvest. As a consultant forester once said about an overdue harvest, "We need to take two harvest's worth of timber in a single harvest."

Another thing against oversized trees is that at some point, added volume no longer equals added value. On some trees, economic maturity and biological maturity are two different things. A good illustration is Sugar Maple trees.

When they are small to medium, the wood tends to be white, but as they reach maturity or overmaturity, the ratio of brown heartwood to white sapwood increases, devaluing the log. Veneer mills may not accept a log if it is bigger than their lathe or slicer can handle. This degrades a would-be veneer log to a lumber log. One thing is certain, if you see racoons crawling out of holes in the tree, you have missed both economic and biological maturity.

What options do we have with a log that is too large for local mills and unwanted by tabletop slab producers? I think of three options:

(1) Using a chainsaw to break it down to useable dimensions.
(2) Discarding the log.
(3) Last, but certainly not least, is blowing the log into several pieces.

They each have their pros and cons. Breaking the log down with a chainsaw is the most controlled method, but it's time consuming and no fun. Discarding the log is easy but unprofitable. Blowing is a lot of fun and is a technique I'd be glad to demonstrate, but it only works on certain species. I won't go into detail on how it's done other than to say it involves copious quantities of gun powder, an impressive concussion, flying objects, questions from neighbors, and sometimes, success.

I visited Calaveras Big Trees State Park in California a few times in my younger years, and it is on my bucket list of places to visit again sometime. It is awe-inspiring for anyone but especially for those in the timber industry. Perhaps the logger blood runs too thick in my genes, but as I stood there admiring those huge trees, I almost drooled over the thought of cutting one down. On one hand, it is disgusting to know that the tremendous amount of wood from all those behemoths will go to waste, but on the other hand, I am glad that some were preserved for us to enjoy.

Someday, I'd like to visit Sequoia National Park and see the tree named General Sherman. It is purportedly the largest living tree on earth by footage: it is estimated to contain over 600,000 board feet! It takes me down a notch to realize that one tree contains more footage than the entirety of any single job we've ever done.

Photo of huge log on trailer: When the tree drops, the fun stops. Skidding and loading huge trees can be quite difficult.

Winter photo of saw leaning against huge log: This burr oak was 245 years old and measured 6' at the stump.

Good forestry is not a contest to see how large of trees can be grown, so harvest at the appropriate time. Determining when trees are mature is a bit like trying to tell if a watermelon is ripe. It is hard to pinpoint maturity, but there are visible clues to an experienced eye. For instance, the bark of a mature walnut usually looks different than an immature walnut. Seek the advice of someone you can trust.

If the opportunity comes along to harvest a giant tree, enjoy the challenge, remember Who created them, and share the stories without boasting. It is humbling to think that a giant tree lives far longer than we do.

SPECIES	#TREES	EST. BD. FT. VOL. DOYLE

Chart of species, tree count and footage; This was a phenomenal timber sale we tried to log several years ago. Notice that the trees averaged over 1,000 board feet apiece! It was a riverbottom job and we were unable to extract them all.

Photo of felled "broccoli" tree: This fencerow burr oak was a classic "broccoli" tree. The diameter was larger at 8' than at the stump. We only found one customer with a saw capable of handling it.

TRAVELS WITH GAVELS

Understanding Equipment Categories: Sawmill vs. Logging vs. Construction

By Loren Beachy, President, Bright Star Auctions

Jonas Graber and Amos Troyer pulled up chairs at the back table of the bulk food store at the Ashery, near Mount Hope Ohio, both of them cradling cups of coffee that had been hot when they walked in fifteen minutes earlier. Jonas runs an excavating crew. Amos runs a small sawmill on the family farm. They had not crossed paths in a few months.

"How did your auction go in March?" Jonas asked. Amos took a long sip. "About what we hoped. The mill itself brought a fair price. The skid steer with the forestry head, though—" he shook his head "—that one surprised us. Brought more than we figured."

"Funny you mention skid steers," Jonas said. "I sold one last fall and it brought less than I figured it should. Same brand, same model, maybe a hundred more hours than yours."

The two of them puzzled over that for a few minutes before the conversation drifted to other matters. But the question lingers, and I think it is worth answering: How can two near-identical machines bring noticeably different prices?

The answer, more often than not, comes down to which market the machine ended up in. And that brings us to a subject we get asked about often—the difference between sawmill equipment, logging equipment, and construction equipment, and why understanding the distinction matters whether you are buying or selling.

Three Different Worlds

Let me start with something many readers might find surprising. When we sort through the lots that pass through our auctions, we use roughly eight broad categories. Though ag equipment, metalworking, and transport are large equipment markets as well, the three I want to focus on here are sawmill, forestry (which most folks simply call logging), and construction or excavating.

These three worlds share equipment that looks similar from a distance. They share some of the same brand names. They sometimes share the same auction yard. But the buyers, the price drivers, and even the geography of demand can be quite different. Treat them all alike and you will sooner or later get bitten by the difference.

Sawmill Equipment: The Stationary World

Sawmill equipment is, broadly speaking, the machinery that lives at the mill and turns logs into lumber. The list is long and a little specialized: debarkers, headrigs, carriages, edgers, resaws, trimsaws, gang saws, planers, grinders, conveyors, rollcases, transfer decks, green chains, sharpeners, blade tensioners, kiln carts, and the long supporting cast of motors and small tooling that keeps a mill running.

If a piece of equipment is bolted to the floor of a mill, or part of a line that feeds another piece of equipment that is bolted to the floor, it is almost certainly sawmill equipment. The buyers for this category are mostly other mill operators—people building a new line, upgrading an existing one, or replacing a worn-out machine with something better.

Because the buyer pool is narrower and more specialized than for, say, an excavator, two things tend to be true. First, sawmill equipment can take longer to move in a soft market, because there are fewer buyers and they tend to be deliberate. Second—and this is the encouraging side—when sawmill operators see a clean, well-maintained machine they have been looking for, they will travel a long distance and pay a fair price to get it. We have shipped equipment from Pennsylvania mills to British Columbia. The market is national, sometimes international, and the right machine finds the right buyer.

A few quick principles that hold up well in sawmill equipment: Brand matters more than in most other categories. Cleereman, Wood-Mizer, Morbark, Mellot, Salem, Pendu, Echo—these names move equipment. A no-name, or "Shop-Built" sawmill carriage with the same specs as a Cleereman will not bring Cleereman money, no matter how nicely it is painted.

Age matters less than condition and current usability. A 1990 debarker that has been maintained and is still running brings real money. A five-year-old machine that has sat in the weather for two years brings disappointment.

Whole lines often sell for more than the sum of their parts. A complete, working resaw line with feed system, scanner, and outfeed conveyors, sold as an entirety, will typically bring more than the same pieces auctioned individually. Buyers value the integration.

Logging Equipment: The Mobile World

Logging equipment, sometimes called forestry equipment, is the machinery that works in the woods to harvest and move timber. Feller bunchers, harvesters, skidders, forwarders, knucklebooms, log trucks, log trailers, chippers, stump grinders, swamp mats—if it has tracks or tires and earns its living in the woods, this is the category.

The big names here are different from the sawmill list: Tigercat, TimberPro, Ponsse, John Deere, Komatsu, Cat, Prentice, Serco, Morbark, CSI, Rotochopper. The buyers are loggers and timber operators who tend to know exactly what they want, exactly what hours and condition they will accept, and exactly what their next job needs.

A few things make logging equipment its own animal in the auction world: Hours and condition are watched carefully. A 2022 Tigercat 620H skidder with reasonable hours and good tires is one machine. The same model with twice the hours and bald tires is a very different proposition, and the price will reflect that more dramatically than it does in some other categories.

Geography plays a bigger role than people expect. The species being logged, the terrain, and the wetness of the ground all influence what kind of equipment is in demand in a given region. A track machine that is highly prized in the Pacific Northwest may sell at a discount in the flat woods of the South, and a tire skidder common in the Carolinas may not be what an Oregon logger needs.

Logging is hard on machines. Buyers know this. Walking into the auction with documentation—service records, recent component work, photos of the underside, video of the machine running through its full cycle—is worth real money in this category. Without it, buyers assume the worst and bid accordingly.

Logging is hard on machines. Buyers know this. Walking into the auction with documentation—service records, recent component work, photos of the underside, video of the machine running through its full cycle—is worth real money in this category. Without it, buyers assume the worst and bid accordingly.

Construction Equipment: The Broadest Market

Construction or excavating equipment is the broadest of the three categories and, for that reason, often the easiest to sell. Excavators, dozers, wheel loaders, skid steers, compact track loaders, telehandlers, backhoe loaders, mini excavators, articulated trucks, rollers, scissor lifts, forklifts, crushers, screeners—the list is long and the buyer pool is vast.

Buyers come from earthmoving contractors, road builders, residential developers, municipal departments, demolition outfits, gravel pit operators, farmers expanding into custom work, and individual landowners doing their own projects. In any given region of the country, there are dozens of likely buyers for any common piece of construction equipment, and in many cases hundreds.

Because the buyer pool is so wide, construction equipment generally moves more quickly than the other two categories. But that breadth comes with its own rules: Brand premiums are real but smaller. A Caterpillar, John Deere, Komatsu, Volvo, or Case wheel loader in good condition will outsell most off-brand competitors, but the gap is not as severe as it is in sawmill equipment. Bobcat, Kubota, and Takeuchi dominate the small machine market and command premium prices accordingly.

Hours and recent work history drive value. Construction buyers are sophisticated about hour meters, fluid analysis, and undercarriage wear. They are not paying for hopes; they are paying for what they can verify.

The Crossover Machines

Now we come back to Jonas and Amos and their skid steers. Some machines genuinely belong to more than one of these worlds, and that is where the market can confuse a seller who is not paying attention. A skid steer is the clearest example. The same Bobcat T770 might serve a road contractor, a small dairy, a logging crew running it as a brush machine with a forestry mulcher head, or a sawmill operator using it to move slabs and sweep up the yard.

Telehandlers are increasingly cross-market. A Genie or JCB telehandler is at home on a construction site, in a sawmill yard, or on a horse farm.

Wheel loaders are another genuine crossover. The same John Deere 624 or Volvo L60 might be loading logs at a sawmill yard one year, handling aggregate at a gravel pit the next, and clearing a construction site after that. We see wheel loaders draw bidders from many of our worlds, and that competition often pushes values higher than a seller might expect from any one market alone.

So how did Amos's skid steer bring more than Jonas's? Most likely because Amos's machine sold in an auction that drew sawmill and forestry buyers, and the forestry head on his machine put it directly in front of operators who needed it for that purpose. Jonas's machine, sold in a more general construction setting, did not have that same magnetic pull.

The lesson is straightforward. When a piece of equipment can credibly belong to more than one category, the seller is well served by considering where it will draw the strongest buyer pool, and the buyer is well served by knowing which market is setting the price on the day he is bidding.

Practical Takeaways for Buyers and Sellers

For sellers, three thoughts: Know which world your machine lives in before you decide how to sell it. Putting a good used Crosby edger in a general construction auction is likely to disappoint you—the right buyers simply will not be in the room. The category drives the market, and the market drives the price.

If you have a crossover machine, think about which attachment or which configuration emphasizes the stronger market. A bare skid steer is a bare skid steer. The same machine with a forestry head sells in a different room. Documentation pays back tenfold in logging and sawmill categories. For construction equipment, hour meters and maintenance records are the gold standard.

For buyers, two thoughts: Pay attention to the room you are bidding in. The same machine will price differently in a sawmill auction than in a construction auction. Sometimes the smart play is to be the only construction buyer in a sawmill auction. Sometimes the smart play is the opposite. Watch the room, and watch the lots that come before yours, and you will learn a lot in the first thirty minutes.

Cross-category machines are often where deals get found. The forestry head you wanted may show up at an estate auction full of farm equipment, where nobody else in the room knows what it is worth.

Back to Jonas and Amos

Both of them came out fine, of course. Amos got more for his skid steer because the right buyers were in the room. Jonas got a fair number too—just a different fair number, set by different buyers solving different problems. Neither one of them did anything wrong. They just played in different ballparks.

Once you understand the three worlds and how they overlap, the rest of it becomes simple arithmetic. And the next time someone asks me at the coffee shop why two near-identical machines brought different prices, I will probably hand them a copy of this column and pour myself another cup.

ATTENTION PHONE BIDDERS

DON'T HANG UP YET.

Winning your lot on the phone doesn't count until your number does.

Here's the issue: a phone bidder wins a lot, but the number gets missed, garbled, or never clearly repeated back before they hang up. In the past, we'd clerk that lot to the auction company and hope we could pull the right number off the call recording afterward.

When we couldn't, that lot sat sold but unassigned to anyone — until the buyer happened to call back in. That's how we ended up with a policy.

STAY ON THE LINE

NEW PICKUP AND PAYOUT DATES

Starting with the December IronRing auction

Starting with the December IronRing auction, buyers have 14 days from the close of the auction to pick up. Sellers are paid on day 15.

WHY WE'RE CHANGING IT

Used equipment isn't perfect, and nobody expects it to be. We aren't mechanics, and a seller can't remember every leak, worn bushing, or quirk on a machine they've run for years. That's normal, and it's why we sell everything as-is.

Every so often, though, there's a true misrepresentation. A buyer pays $50,000 for a machine and finds out the engine needs a full rebuild, whether the seller didn't know or didn't say. Under the old timeline, sellers were paid as soon as buyer funds cleared, and buyers had about three weeks to pick up. By the time a problem like that came up, the money had already moved and there was very little anyone could do.

The new dates fix that. Pickup and payout now line up, so if something major is wrong, we find out while there's still time to do something about it.

FOR BUYERS

- Pick up your equipment within 14 days of the auction close.
- Run it and check it as soon as you have it.
- If a machine has a major problem that contradicts what we published, call or email us by the end of day 14. For example, it was listed as running and it doesn't, or it has a major failure the listing didn't mention.
- A claim gets your issue in front of us before the seller is paid. It isn't a return policy, and it doesn't guarantee a refund or any specific outcome.
- After day 14 our options get very limited. Call us anyway. We'd rather hear from you than have you assume the answer is no.
- This window isn't for second thoughts, small flaws, or working out a lower price. Worn tires, minor leaks, cosmetic damage, and normal wear come with buying used equipment as-is.

FOR SELLERS

- You'll be paid on day 15 after the auction closes. We know that's later than you're used to.
- What you get in return is buyers who bid with confidence. When buyers know a big miss won't leave them stuck, they're more willing to bid.
- Forgetting a small detail won't undo your sale. Claims are for major problems that contradict the listing, not the everyday wear that comes with used equipment.
- Your best protection is telling us everything you know up front. A problem that's in the listing can't come back as a surprise.

OUR COMMITMENT

★ BRIGHT STAR AUCTIONS

We at Bright Star Auctions want to represent the equipment to the best of our and the seller's knowledge. We want to create an experience where you can trust what gets stated is the best representation of the equipment possible. We also recognize that we won't be able to find every small detail. That is where "as is" comes in, and you should assume that used machinery will come along with some defects. We want you to be able to bid with confidence. Thank you for your help in this.

Bright Star Auctions provides the name of a recommended third-party rigger whom buyers may choose to hire for rigging, load-out, or related services. This rigger is not an employee, agent, or representative of Bright Star Auctions. Buyers who require rigging services must contract directly with the rigger of their choice. Buyers may request a rigging quote from the recommended rigger prior to the auction. Bright Star Auctions highly recommends hiring the recommended rigger. Items requiring rigging include: Any installed equipment that cannot be removed without additional work. Equipment that must be cut, torched, unassembled, or otherwise modified for removal. Any item that is fixed, anchored, or integrated into a structure or system. Buyers have three rigging options: 1. Hire the recommended rigger. 2. Perform their own rigging. · If Buyers decide to do their own rigging, they must abide by the Self Rigging Terms and Conditions (See Addendum A) · And by signing proper rigging terms agreement. (See Addendum B) These will be displayed in the documents section. If you click on there, there should be an addendum A and addendum B. After this initial period: Buyers are fully responsible for all equipment startup and loading. Buyers must schedule an appointment for any loadout after the designated dates. Loading Requirements for Larger Non-Rigging Items: Larger items that do not require rigging but do require specialized equipment—such as cranes, wheel loaders, or other heavy lift machinery—may be subject to a loading fee. Buyers have two options for loading these items: Hire the recommended rigger, schedule an appointment and pay the quoted loading price. Provide their own appropriate equipment and complete the load-out themselves Small & Palletized Item Load-Out: Small and palletized items qualify for free loadout during the designated free loadout timeframe. Staff will be available to assist with loader operated loading when necessary. After this timeframe ends: Minimum of $25 per lot, or other loadout charges will apply. Buyers become fully responsible for arranging their own loading. Items that can be loaded by hand must be loaded by the buyer, without staff assistance. Bidder acknowledges and agrees that Auctioneer is acting in reliance on tendered bids in the conduct of the Auction, and that bid retraction is disruptive and interferes with the Auction, and that, as an inducement for Auctioneer to accept such Bidder's Bidder Registration and for such Bidder to bid at the Auction, Bidder agrees not to withdraw or to attempt to withdraw any tendered bid that has been acknowledged byAuctioneer.

10.3. Posted Times. All times are based on the Eastern Standard Time zone unless stated otherwise. Posted closing times and time displays are approximate. Auctioneer reserves the right to close early or extend the Auction at any time at Auctioneer's sole and absolutediscretion.

10.4. Online Bidding Increments. Auctioneer may establish bid increments, and may modify or change bid increments, in Auctioneer's sole and absolutediscretion.

10.5. Records of Online Activity. Absent clerical errors, Auctioneer's records will be deemed final andconclusive.

10.6. Technology Disruptions. Auctioneer will not be responsible for technology disruptions, errors, or failures (including disruptions to bidding or the failure to execute, recognize, or record online bids), whether caused by (i) loss of connectivity, breakdown, disruption, or failure of the Online Auction Platform, (ii) breakdown, disruption, or failure of a Bidder's internet connection, computer, or system, (iii) viruses or software malfunction, or (iv) otherwise. Auctioneer may, but will not be required to, continue, suspend, delay, extend, reschedule, or close the Auction because of disruptions caused by technology failures, even after bidding has commenced.

10.7. Failures by Online Auction Platform Provider and its Affiliates or Contractors. Auctioneer may use an Online Auction Platform Provider to facilitate the Auction. Under no circumstances will Auctioneer be liable for any failure of the Online Auction Platform Provider to perform all or any of its obligations, or for the failure of any affiliates, employees, agents, representatives, or contractors of the Online Auction Platform Provider to perform theirobligations.

10.8. Auto Extend Feature. Any Online Bidding Period may include an auto extend feature. This means that, if an online bid is entered within a set time period approaching the end of the established Online Bidding Period, the Online Bidding Period will automatically be extended for an additional amount of time in increments established by Auctioneer, and will continue to be so extended until there is a set period of time that lapses during which no online bids are received, after which bidding will close.

All prebids and maxbids placed online are considered absentee bids. Auctioneer pledges complete integrity in the treatment of absentee bids and absentee bids may be initiated and advanced in accordance with Auctioneer's policies and procedures. Auctioneer has the right to initiate any absentee bids at 25% to 50% of their maximum amount. Auctioneer will make reasonable efforts to execute Absentee Bids, but Auctioneer will have no liability to any Absentee Bidder for the failure to execute any Absentee Bids for anyreason whatsoever. Each Absentee Bidder acknowledges and agrees that Property may be sold to another Bidder for the maximum amount of the Absentee Bid based on a bidding sequence that causes another Bidder to reach such amount first. If the execution of an Absentee Bid at its maximum amount would require Auctioneer to accept a bid that is less than a full bidding increment, Auctioneer has the sole and absolute discretion to accept or reject such bid. An Absentee Bidder may provide instructions to the Auctioneer to advance the bid by one or more bidding increments after the maximum amount of the Absentee Bid is, or would be, reached. 13. Registered Bidders Responsible for Bids Placed on Bidder Number. Each Registered Bidder is responsible for the Bidder Number issued to such Registered Bidder. Auctioneer is not responsible for monitoring or policing the use of Bidder Numbers, and each Registered Bidder is responsible for all bids made on the Bidder Number issued to such Registered Bidder even if the Registered Bidder claims that the Bidder Number was lost, stolen, or misappropriated, unless notice of a lost, stolen, or misappropriated Bidder Number was provided to Auctioneer prior to an unauthorized bid being made. Absent a clerical error, Auctioneer's recording of bids against a Bidder Number will be conclusive as to the making of such bid by, or on behalf of, the RegisteredBidder.
